50ML

Alipús San Andres Mezcal San Andres, Mexico	20.00
There are hundreds of small mezcal distilleries in Oaxaca, and Alipús was started by Los Danzantes to help bring the best of these family owned, tiny production mezcals to the world. With help from Loz Danzantes these small distilleries have gained a wider market, improved their production methods (wood chipped agave anyone?) and have been able to give their children jobs at home as distillers, allowing them to return home to their families.

COGNAC

50ml

Martell Cognacs*Cognac, France*

Established in 1715, Martell is the oldest of the major cognac houses. The rare Borderies area of the Cognac region provides the brandies central to the style of the house; after long ageing in fine-grained Tronçais oak these produce pure, smooth and intense cognacs, with the older examples developing a signature note of blackcurrant.

SMOKY WHISKY

50ml

Ardbeg Uigeadail11.00Single Malt, Islay, Scotland*

The malt used at Ardbeg is traditionally the smokiest on the island of Islay, and the whiskies are certainly peaty. There is an elegance to the smoke, however, and as Andrew Jefford has said, "Ardbeg's peat is cerebral and celestial."

Dalmore 15 Year Old 9.00

Single Malt, Highlands, Scotland

A rich, sherried malt with cinnamon, clove, fruitcake, coffee and probably quite a few more things we haven't got space to list. Dalmore 15 is a classic post-prandial dram, reminiscent of Christmas pudding with brandy butter and just as moreish.

ARMAGNAC

50ml

Darroze Domain de Tillet 1975 22.00

Bas-Armagnac, France

In 1974 Francis Darroze started what was to become one of the most respected and commended Armagnac offerings both in France and internationally. Both Francis and his son, Marc, search the cellars of Bas Armagnac to find delicious and often forgotten casks which they bottle to order. As Robert Parker Jr put it "One has never really tried an Armagnac until trying those of Francis Darroze".

WHISK(E)Y

“If a body can just find out the exact proper proportion and quantity that ought to be drunk every day and keep to that, I verily throw that he might leave forever without dying at all.” So said James Hogg of Scotch in the early 19th century, some time before he passed away at the age of 64 having presumably failed to work out the quantities involved. Luckily the whisky selection available to the aspiring immortal is far wider these days, as represented in the following pages.

LIGHT & SMOOTH WHISKY

50ml

Clerk of the Works Single Malt, Speyside, Scotland	11.00
One of our own resident Scotch obsessives, Phil Duffy, was so taken with a particular cask he tried at the Craggenmore distillery that he insisted they bottle it up just for us. Distilled on the edge of the river Spey, it's a 16 year old single cask single malt. Rich and full with biscuit and sweet spice and a lingering finish. We've named it Clerk of the Works after our namesake Nicholas Hawksmoor, and our favourite illustrator, Ashlea O'Neill, has decorated the labels accordingly.

The Glenlivet 18 Year Old Single Malt, Speyside, Scotland	14.00
“Stewed fruit” is a tasting note which crops up now and again with whiskies. Having not stewed that many fruits we're ill-equipped for a direct comparison, but this one is packed with orange, pear and apricots.
