dedicata alla lombardia

Lombardia, Chef and Co-Owner Alessandro Pavoni's home region, is located in the northwest of Italy. This beautiful region is a focal point for us at Ormeggio, as we look to introduce food and wine specific to Lombardia. It has a diverse landscape, with an abundance of beautiful lakes, Alpine forests and intensively cultivated plains in the Po River valley. The climate is generally cool Continental, although it can vary widely within its unique terrain. The capital city Milano is Italy's fashion and financial centre.

Currently Lombardia has three DOCG, fifteen DOC and thirteen IGT Designations.

nebbiolo in italia

Nebbiolo is one of the great wine varieties of the world and is known to have been grown as early as the 14th century in the Piedmont Region. It is a difficult, late ripening variety that requires plenty of exposure to sunshine, careful site selection and real excellence in the vineyard to obtain quality results. Nebbiolo is thought to derive its name from the Piedmontese word nebbia meaning "fog" - which often cloaks the vineyards at harvest time.

Nebbiolo is certainly not made to be an instantly ready-to-drink style. Wines made from this variety have substantially high tannin and acid levels that can often make them hard to approach in their youth. That said, given sufficient time these wines emerge into incredibly complex, unique and haunting expressions of the grape that can live for decades. In some ways Nebbiolo can be a very difficult wine to categorise as some can appear as a lighter, floral, pinot-esque 'pretty' style; while others are dark, rich, alcoholic, tannic and very powerful.

In some instances Nebbiolo is referred to as 'Pinot Noir on steroids' and without doubt these two varieties share some real similarities that cross over at different points - but are certainly not one and the same! In general, good Nebbiolo displays striking aromatics such as roses and tar, a strong tannic backbone (that will soften with age), and many types of herbs, flowers and spices, such as licorice, violets, pepper, tea, leather, and many variations on the themes of cherries and dark fruits. Great Nebbiolo, like great Pinot Noir, has a certain 'something' that is mysterious and alluring.

Nebbiolo is found predominately in the northwest Italian region of Piedmont where it forms the base of many of the region's most well known DOC and DOCG wines including Barolo, Barbaresco, Gattinara, Ghemme and Alba. Outside of Piedmont, it can also be found in the regions of Lombardia and Valle D'Aosta.

Valtellina Superiore DOCG

The Valtellina is a valley located in the province of Sondrio, and is Lombardia's most northern wine zone. Surrounded by high mountains, Valtellina is carved out of the slopes that descend to the Adda River. Here, Nebbiolo - or Chiavanesca as it is known by the locals - has been grown for centuries, and makes some of the region's very finest reds. Grapes for 'Superiore' DOCG wines can only be sourced from vineyards in one of five Valtellina sub-zones: Marroggia, Grumello, Inferno, Valgella and Sassella. A further two years of ageing is required before release. These Nebbiolos often display a solid structure with floral notes, cherry fruit, tea, spices, savoury tannins and subtle acidity.

2010 Mamete Prevostini 'Botonero' Terraze Retiche di Sondrio IGT $75

2008 Mamete Prevostini 'Sassella', $120

2005 Alberto Marsetti 'Le Prudenze' $195

Sforzato di Valtellina DOCG

Unique to the zone of Valtellina, the designation of 'Sforzato' indicates the wine has been made with Nebbiolo grapes that have been laid out to partially dry for around 100-110 days. Seen as the region's signature wine these are finely crafted examples that sit on top of the quality pyramid and retain high prices. As the grapes dry out, the sugar levels rise, acidity levels decrease, liquid reduces (grapes lose around 40% of their weight) and unique flavour profiles develop. These wines have immense density, power and complexity.

2007 Nino Negri 'Sfursat' $175

2007 Nino Negri '5 stelle' $210

2007 Mamete Prevostini 'Albareda' $225
