Served on beautiful tiered cake trays and featuring a selection of fine sandwiches, freshly-baked scones and delicious pastries, afternoon tea is served with Wilkinson's loose tea and, of course, champagne by the glass!

Afternoon tea was originally the brainchild of the Duchess of Bedford who was Lady-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria. She thought there was an intolerable length of time between luncheon and evening dinner and decided that it would be enjoyable to take some refreshment halfway between the two. So she arranged for tea to be brewed and for the kitchens to design sweet and savoury snacks; the habit soon caught on and before long this very English interlude was being enjoyed by all.
