

TULBAGH WINERY, SINCE 1906

In ancient times the rich and fertile Tulbagh valley was in an unspoiled and verdant state and home to thousands of wild animals and an incredible variety of plants of the indigenous Cape floral kingdom. It was only after the Dutch settlers created the town in 1658 that civilization came to this part of the Cape. Today, diverse floral species are still evident in the area and this fertile valley produces some of the country's best red and white wine, olive oils, peaches, grain, pears and 70 percent of all the plums harvested in the country. Apart from the abundance of fruit, grain and other farming activities, the valley hosts 14 wine estates, producing some of the country's finest wines.

Tulbagh Winery was founded in 1906 and ever since produced quality wines. Tulbagh is studded with a history of golden "firsts" over the past 109 years in South Africa: The first export cellar; the first cellar to manufacture sparkling wine; the first cellar to launch a ship when the Queen Mother christened the 38.000 ton Windsor Castle with a bottle of Witzenberg. On 3 January 2006 one of the largest cellars in the country was born with the merger of Tulbagh and Porterville Cellar. With its main office situated in the fertile valley at the foot of the Winterhoek Mountains, the cellar grasped the opportunity to maximize the benefits of strong brands, superior marketing, increased cost effective production and wider distribution. The emphasis of Tulbagh is still to produce quality wines that is consumer focused and best value.

Tulbagh wines cover the full spectrum of South Africa's best cultivars, whether it is soft easy-drinking red, or the fresh and piquant dry whites, the emphasis is on fruity blends that reflect the friendliness of the region. The trade names that are renowned for Tulbagh, are the award winning Tulbagh Reserve known as "Klein Tulbagh", the winemakers selection under the "Paddagang" collection, the commercial Tulbagh Winery range and the ever popular Village and Disa collections.
