

YOUR TRADEMARK SEARCH RESULTS

In the following pages, you will find information about both registered and pending trademarks with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) that may conflict with the one that you want to register.

Trademark text or literal element searched:

Solar Bros 2017

What is a trademark conflict?

As part of your trademark application review, the USPTO searches its records for conflicts between your proposed mark and other federally registered or pending marks. For examination purposes, a conflict exists when one trademark is confusingly similar with another trademark already registered or is pending registration. The principal factors used by the USPTO to determine potential conflicts include:

- The similarity of the marks in appearance, sound, and meaning
- Whether the marks are used to sell similar types of products (“goods”) or services
- The number of similar marks currently in use
- The similarity of established sales channels and the sophistication of the relevant buyers

Please note: To be considered a conflict, your trademark does not have to be identical to another trademark and the products and/or services associated with the marks do not have to be exactly the same. Conflicts are determined by the USPTO, not by LegalZoom.

What should I do next?

Please review the following pages carefully. Once your review is complete, please email trademarksearch@legalzoom.com and tell us how you want to proceed.

Your options are:

1. LegalZoom will process and file your trademark application as is.
2. Submit a different name or logo — this means you can either update your previous submission or create a new mark altogether. You will receive a FREE Basic Federal Direct-Hit Search of the different mark (up to three searches are included with your trademark application order).
3. Consult with an attorney about your trademark and search results.*
4. Upgrade your order with a Comprehensive Trademark Search for more coverage of possible conflicts, including unregistered uses of marks similar to your proposed trademark in commerce (for example, in business and website domain names).
